Subject: HP TRIM ONLINE ENQUIRY : Online Request from Ellen Allen

The following online enquiry has been sent to you as the nominated contact for your DHHS departmental/operational unit/THO.

This is an enquiry made by a member of the public using the DHHS website feedback form. This is an automated process.

You have seven (7) days to respond to this query.

If you are responding to the query via a return email, then please send a copy of that email response to cdis@dhhs.tas.gov.au so that we can finalise the record.

If the person requests a response via a phone call, then you must send an email to cdis@dhhs.tas.gov.au indicating when you have responded to the person. The email should include details such as what date and time contact was made with the person and a brief description of what action was taken to resolve their query. We need this information so that this record can be finalised.

Please note that Corporate Document and Information Services (CDIS) only pass on online enquires to business units where the public has chosen either "General" or "Other" on the DHHS website feedback form.

If you have any feedback or require more information on the online enquiry process please contact the Senior Adviser CDIS by email at cdis@dhhs.tas.gov.au

Online Request from Ellen Allen

Client notes : Integrative Medicine is the combination of best practice in mainstream and complementary health to provide the best service by prevention first cooperation and reduced duplication of services. This is the way forward for a sustainable affordable and healthy system. I would like to this topic and complementary health practitioners on the agenda. Congratulations for opening the discussion, but deeply disappointed at the health system Tas ignoring the contribution of dedicated complementary practitioners making a huge difference. See AIMA and NIIMs for info about the progress of Integrative Medicine and its benefits.
